State Rep. Laura Fine (D-Glenview) has opened her district office in Glenview at 1812 Waukegan Road, Suite A, a recent press release announced. Her office will be open from 9:00 a.m. 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"My responsibility is to represent the people of my district in Springfield," Fine said in her press release. "The best way I can do my job is by meeting with local elected officials, community leaders, and constituents to learn about their concerns and ideas on how we can move the state forward."

The new State Rep. has been busy holding meetings with various community leaders to learn how local influencers can work together to best serve the needs of constituents, according to the release.

"Having come into office at such a difficult time in our state's history, I know that we must all work together to get Illinois back on the right track," she said in the release. "I want to hear from my constituents about the issues that concern them most, and their suggestions on how to reform our pension system, cut wasteful spending and make Illinois a more business-friendly state."

"I encourage anyone who lives and works in my district to contact my office with any suggestions for legislation or if they need help navigating the state bureaucracy," she added.

Fine can be reached by calling (847) 998-1717 or by e-mailing RepFine@gmail.com.
